

Oct. 5, 2005 6:16pm ET

CBS NEWSSEARCH  CBSNews.com  The WebHome | U.S. | World | Politics | SciTech | Health | Entertainment | Business | Opinion | Sports | Public Eye
The Early Show | CBS Evening News | 48 Hours | 60 Minutes | The Saturday Early Show | CBS Sunday MorningOPINION

Editorial Toons/Crossword >
Cohen: CourtWatch >
Meyer: Against The Grain >
Lynch: Political Points >
Bob Schieffer's Take >
Andy Rooney >
Harry Smith Reporting >
Garver: Modern Times >
Wolfson: Dispatches >
Listening Post >
CBS News Polls >

> E-MAIL THIS STORY > PRINTABLE VERSION

VISIT
Rating The President's Speech

Sept. 16, 2005

PHOTO ESSAY

A President's Visit
 President Bush tours the battered Gulf Coast, trying to console some of Katrina's victims.

INTERACTIVE

Bush Presidency
 The president's second-term agenda, plus facts, figures, major events and key personalities.

PHOTO ESSAY

Katrina: New Orleans
 A major U.S. city struggles with the devastation wrought by the deadly storm.

RELATED STORIES & LINKS

Bush: 'Great City Will Rise Again'
 President Promises Government Will Pay Much Of Cost To Rebuild

Text Of Bush Speech

President Bush concludes his remarks following his nationally televised address from New Orleans. (AP)

QUOTE

Any conservative with third grade math skills or beyond could smell trillions of dollars of budget deficit flowing out of Bush's mouth.

Union addresses. Though Bush no longer rushes his Teleprompter reading as he once did, he was squinting as though he was having a hard time reading. Additionally, the lighting seemed too harsh on his eyes. While technically proficient, Bush didn't adequately personalize his delivery. Additionally positive, Bush did not shake or bob his head, as he often does when he tries to seem emphatic.

Speech Craft

Structurally, Bush's speech was well-crafted. He used ample doses of examples, stories and vignettes, complete with dialogue from real people. However, his hawking of 1-800 numbers and websites seemed un-presidential and more appropriate for a lowly public information officer giving a press briefing.

Emotional resonance

(National Review Online) This column was written by T.J. Walker.

Presence

President Bush's walk out to the lectern in front of a church last night to address the nation was a nice opening touch. His blue shirt was wrinkleless, but with rolled up sleeves, he looked like he was serious about hard work and seemed appropriately somber.

Stage Craft

Bush has greatly improved his TelePrompter reading abilities over the years, but he is still no Reagan or Clinton. Though Bush had only a few very minor stumbles, he didn't seem as steady or rehearsed as he did earlier in the year for his Inaugural or the State of the

Text Of Bush Speech

Bush seemed to be suggesting that the government was at fault for its slow response to Katrina and that he would take the blame. He conceded that he was less than perfect and that not all criticism of him and his government was just partisan carping from disgruntled liberals and Democrats. Bush conceded that government was "overwhelmed in the first few days." And that, "Americans have every right to expect more." Also, he said, "I as president am responsible for the problem and the solution." These phrases all cut emotionally because they seemed genuine and were rare from this president.

Bush Vows To Rebuild City
Will Make Prime-Time Address
Tonight From French Quarter

Bush Outlines Gulf Recovery Plan
Will Make Prime-Time Address
Tonight From French Quarter

Interesting/weird moments

Bush aid citizens "won't have to wade through bureaucracies..." This seemed clumsy. Americans hate bureaucracy when it means rules and regulations on how to get a driver's license. But bureaucracy involving rules and regulations on how strong levees should be, when evacuation orders should take place, how thick storm walls should be built-citizens would have liked a whole lot more bureaucracy pre-Katrina.

N. Orleans Reopen Plan On Hold
Mayor, Worried By Rita, Instead
Orders One Neighborhood's
Evacuation

Bush also said, "as many of us saw on television" there is a lot of poverty... Ouch, this seemed as awkward as former FEMA head Michael Brown admitting that he didn't know refugees were housed in the New Orleans convention center. Why would Bush speechwriters give his critics ammunition that Bush is out of touch?

Rhetorical highlights

Bush recounted what one citizen said when asked if he would move from New Orleans. "Will you move? 'Naw, I will rebuild, but I will build high.'" This was a nice oratorical touch and Bush carried it off well.

Appeal to liberals

If Hillary Clinton once channeled Eleanor Roosevelt in the White House, then Bush one-upped her by channeling FDR and LBJ. Bush said the answer to all of New Orleans' problems was big government or gigantic government. New government program after new government program was proposed. Ted Kennedy must have been chortling to himself thinking "I must be back in the 60s world of big government solutions to every societal problem." For a moment it seemed Bush would promise a chicken gumbo in every pot.

Appeal to conservatives

Zero. Bush ignored the concepts of individual accountability and responsibility in his speech. In the Bush world, his new moral relativism makes no distinctions between those who bought flood insurance and those who didn't; those who choose to live in safe mountains high above sea level and those who build below sea level in flood zones predicted by every expert to be washed away. Bush's message was redistributionist, collectivist, and nannist. Individuals bear no responsibility for their misfortunes or for their own recovery. Any conservative with third grade math skills or beyond could smell trillions of dollars of budget deficit flowing out of Bush's mouth.

T. J. Walker, author of Presentation Training A-Z, is the president of Media Training Worldwide.

By T.J. Walker.
Reprinted with permission from National Review Online.

INSIDE OPINION

Same Goal, Different Tack

Prospect: Politicians Don't Always Do What Activists Want

- Broken Coverage
- The First Lady, The TV Show
- Sweet Victory: Desegregation Works
- More

TOP STORIES

25 Killed In Iraq Mosque Bombing
Blast At Muslim Shiite

- High Court Revisits Suicide Debate
- Conservatives Not Sold On Miers

Mosque On First Day Of Ramadan

- Central America Feels Stan's Wrath
- More

 Back To Top

---

E-Mail Sign-Up: Breaking News | Today On CBS News | 60 Minutes | 48 Hours | The Early Show | CBS Sunday I

Recommended Sites: CBS.com | CBS SportsLine | UPN.com | CBS Store | CBS Careers | CBS Cares

Help | Advertise | Contact Us | Terms of Service | Privacy Policy | CBS News Bios | Internships

 ©MMV, CBS Broadcasting Inc. All Rights Reserved.